John Busse

John Busse, who was a member of a prominent Minster family, died a past period of time died his home in Dayton, Ohio, on Sunday, March 9, 1935, and his body was interred in the Calvary cemetery in that city on Thursday morning.

As an active citizen of this city, he was connected with the wagon maker's business and he followed that line of action for a number of years after he left this community.

He was a brother of Joseph Busse and Frank Busse, both well known residents in Minster and during his earlier life he was associated with both of these men in a business way. He left Minster and moved to Dayton during the year of 1904 and from that time on he maintained a residence in that city along with the members of his immediate family.

He was a son of Henry and Mary Decker Busse who both spent many years among the people of the community and passed away at advanced ages. He grew up among the Minster locality and he offered the secular and religious training that had been provided for by local leaders. At an early age he entered a wagon maker shop that was owned and operated by his brother Frank Busse and after serving an apprenticeship in this institution he became a partner in an establishment that he carried on here.

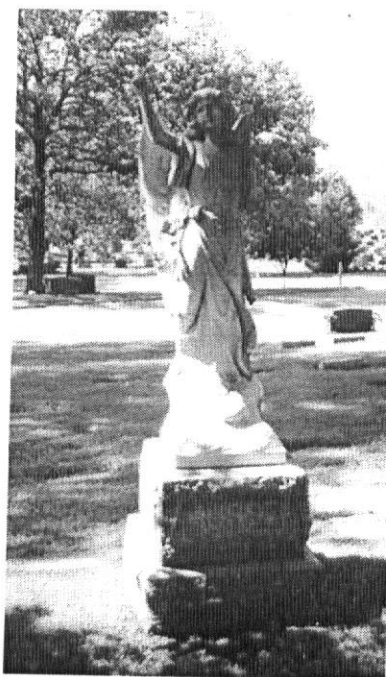

A partnership was formed by himself and his brother Joseph Busse and they built wagons in a shop that stood at the site where a garment store is now located. While this business flourished the good work for the wagons was done by John Busse and the iron work was done by Joseph Busse, the latter a blacksmith. The business continued to have a place in Minster affairs until the time when John Busse moved to Dayton. As a resident in the Gem City, Mr. Busse was first connected with an establishment that was owned and operated by Adolph Heller, who was also a wagon builder. When he divorced himself from Heller institution he associated himself with his sons and they tried on over a period of eight years.

Five children were born into their family and five of this number survive both the mother and father. They are all living in Dayton and they are: Mrs. Bernice Egan, Henry Busse, Mrs. Josephine Gayler, Herbert Busse, Frank Busse. Two children died in infancy while two others lived to maturity before passing. There are thirteen living grand children and two great grand children.

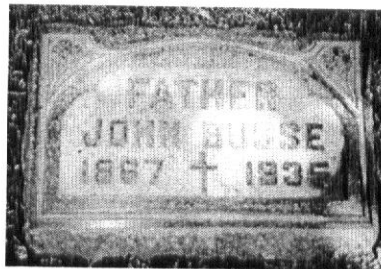

Besides the brothers Joseph and Frank Busse who reside in Minster there is one other brother, Louis W. Busse at Ft. Loraine and one sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Vanderhorst at Dayton. His father and his mother were the parents of ten children.

Mr. Busse was born on June 29, 1867, and at the time of his death was aged 67 years, 8 months and 10 days. When he resided in Minster he became a member of the St. Basil's Benevolent society and he always retained that membership. He was engaged with the members of the Holy Rosary church in Dayton and the funeral was held at this church at nine o'clock on Thursday morning.
