Hello Family and Friends!

Another year has come and gone, and yet I still have not managed to send out our yearly holiday cards on time. Surprise! For all of those who know us well, you are only too aware that Mark is the only punctual person in this house. ☺

2013 proved to be a challenging, yet rewarding year for The Millers. We were fortunate enough to be able to sneak in a few vacations amongst all of the chaos. We enjoyed a trip to Jamaica in May with the Thieman family. If you have not yet had the opportunity to experience Jamaica, we highly recommend it! The water is beautiful and the sunsets are exquisite. We thoroughly enjoyed a week of relaxation, reading, excursions, eating new food and learning how to play dominos. Our second vacation was a long weekend excursion to West Virginia with our friends, Eric and Kathleen Dysert. Mark and I experienced rafting for the first time and had a blast! Poor Mark and Eric were a little sore the next day, but I think they enjoyed it none-the-less. Our final road trip of the year was to Mississippi, where we watched BGSU play Mississippi State in football. It was a close game, and we enjoyed the time with our college friends.

Mark has decided to further his education and add an additional license to his credentials. He is currently halfway through Kent State's transitional ATC-PTA program. He will graduate in August and sit for licensing in October. Once he passes, he will be seeking employment as a physical therapy assistant. He is currently ready to start his part time clinical next week. So far, he has proven to be Superman, as he is working full time and taking full time classes. His GPA is still better than mine! Mark continues to work for NovaCare Rehabilitation as an athletic trainer in Northern Kentucky.

As for myself, this year has been nothing but chaotic on the job front. I continue to be employed with Genesis Rehab Services as a staff physical therapist. I took over the management position in my clinic at the beginning of May, as my manager transferred to a different building. I stayed in that position until late August, when another manager was hired on. I was more than happy to be relieved of those responsibilities. While I did enjoy some aspects of management, I don't think it was the best position for me at that time. As of January 6, I will be working in a new clinic in Cincinnati. I have been transferred to Wellspring & Evergreen, and am looking forward to seeing a different population at this location.

Ally continues to be our pride and joy. She is "sprotten" as we like to call her (spoiled rotten). She enjoys trips to the dog park, playing fetch, and tug of war. She also does well with our frequent car trips and looks forward to going to "Grandma and Grandpa's" in Findlay. We could not have asked for a better companion, as she is fun loving, energetic, and kind.

We hope that you all enjoyed your holidays with your loved ones, as we did our. We thank you for being a part of our lives, and we wish you a blessed 2014!

Love Always The Millers
