Dahlinghaus, Bohman wed in April

Julie Ann Dahlinghaus, daughter of Joe and Betsy Dahlinghaus of Minster, became the bride of Ryan Jerome Bohman, son of Jerry and Eileen Bohman of Celina, on Saturday, April 21, 2007, at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Egypt. Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Rick Nieberding.

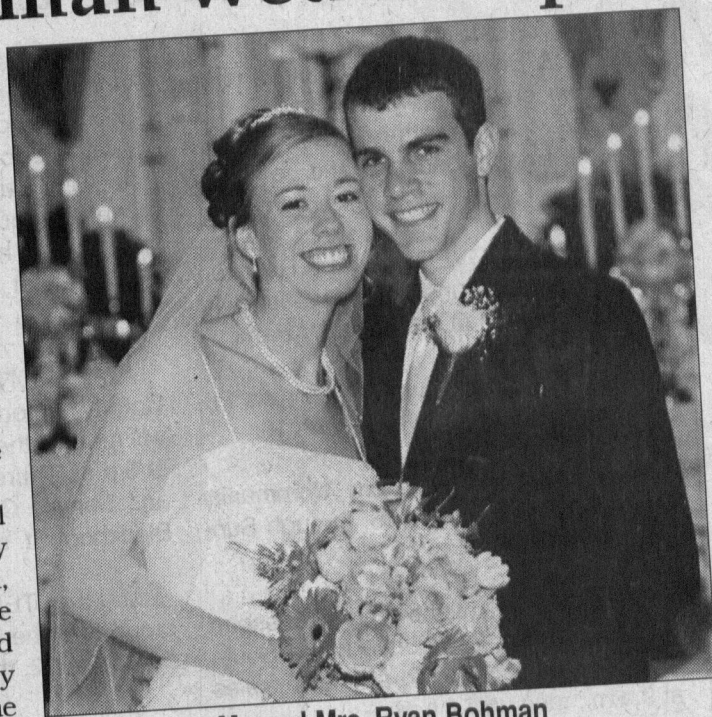

The Maid of Honor was Theresa Dahlinghaus, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Katie Dahlinghaus and Maria Dahlinghaus, sisters of the bride; Michelle Hartings, sister of the groom; Jodi Wehrman, friend of the couple and Jennifer Schmitmeyer, friend of the couple. Sara Dahlinghaus, sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. Gwen Miering, cousin of the bride, was the flower girl.

Performing the duties of the Best Man was Michael Bohman, brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Tony Dahlinghaus, brother of the bride; David Bohman, brother of the groom; Andy Dahlinghaus, cousin of the bride; Brian Fullenkamp, friend of the couple; and Nathan Klosterman, friend of the couple. Joey Bohman, nephew and Godson of the groom, was the ring bearer.

The organist was Amy Noykos, the trumpeter, Larry Coppess, and the vocalists were Kathy Broering, Connie Miering and Rebecca Niekamp, aunts of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, Joe Dahlinghaus, was attired in a satin gown of ivory organza decorated with beaded lace and completed with a scalloped design at the top and at the rounded waistline. The full A-line skirt featured beaded lace motifs throughout and scalloped lace at the hemline, which gave way to a cathedral-length train. She wore a tiara and medium-length veil trimmed with silver thread and crystal accents.

The bride carried a spring bouquet of flowers, featuring esplanade roses, pink daisies, pink tulips and apple green with accents of soft yellow.
